William Brown St. Liverpool. A great and thriving city with the finest docks in the world. One-seventh of the world's tonnage is registered at Liverpool and one-third of Great Britain's foreign trade is carried on from this port. Many of its finest buildings are in William Brown Street. On the right it looks on to St. John's Gardens and the end of St. George's Hall, and on the left an imposing series of Public Buildings in the classical style; the Museums, Library, Walker Art Gallery and beyond is the Wellington Monument 115 feet high.
